Want to Make a Best Friend at Work? Don't Use the Internet...

Social Networking is a growing force in the world. Facebook, My Space, and other Web 2.0 sites can be used to make new friends as well as keep up with old ones. Although technology makes keeping in touch easier, your conversations may not be private. Click here to learn more

Koobface? With Friends Like These...

Software developers are creating new applications for social networking sites at a rapid pace. However, not all of these developers are well-intentioned or skilled in internet security. Security experts warn that many social networking applications may subject you and all your online friends to advertising, identity theft, or computer damage due to viruses.
